Mr Karoly Balazs Erdei

In our global and ever changing world, up-to-date skills and lifelong learning are essential. It is important, that in primary education learners get the basic means to cope with future challenges. (Reading skills, writing skills, arithmetics skills and language skills.) Moreover I believe that most skills are learnt on the job. The sooner one enters the labor market, the more real-life experience he or she can get, the more social need he or she can satisfy, and the more salary he or she can accumulate. So instead of coercing students to school desks for 12, or 16, or even more years, they should be able to enter the labor market sooner. They too would benefit from trying different entry-level jobs and finding out what suits their aptitudes and interests best.
